Katagawa Jr.
Head of Maliwan's Mergers and Acquisitions
Maliwan
Skywell-27
Promethea

Dear Katagawa Jr.

I have recently been ascertained of your certain success within Maliwan through Hyperion's vast directory. As such, I found it appropriate to express my interest as a trusty replacement for Head of Maliwan's Mergers and Acquisitions.

Previously, yours truly has worked in many fields. Perhaps too many to count. To further iterate, I used to be a lowly programmer at Hyperion subsequent to my graduation as a Programming Major up there on Helios, my prior moonbase at Elpis, which used to be hard to miss. My position covered a large majority of what one would consider in a technical environment. Ranging between the construction of a plethora of robotics, such as the Loaderbots of different varieties, Constructors to pinpoint accurate hologram devices and even those pesky CL4P-TP units. You need not worry about the latter. I have disposed of them all. Could you believe that we at Hyperion made those with profit? Back on track. These skills may prove useful throughout the assortment of workplace activities that are included in this line of work. Not only professional use of regular computers with the use of communication and other similar actions but also technological defense against any lawless bandits who dare refuse the offers appointed to them. Trust me, it happens more than you would expect.

However, not long after, I managed to climb the rank of Hyperion's ladder through the knowledge gathered from the Empyrean Sentinel. Or, so to speak, one of those freaky alien creatures. Thereafter I claimed the boss position without much effort, proving that I am capable of advancing in my career even if I seem incompetent at first glance. Such a skill is befitting of Mergers and Acquisitions since I can easily expand both within Maliwan to secure a higher occupation but also continuously merge with foreign companies scattered across the universe. We both have a chance to grow, Katagawa. To reiterate, my occupation as CEO and Dictator of Pandora gave me major influence over a large part of our star system, alongside a name feared by many. I happen to be aware of your Giant Death Laser and I would be a heavy contender for the supervision of that due to my keen knowledge of Hyperion's very own Moonshot cannon. If you let me integrate into your systems with my amazing AI then your Skywell will be more than secure from outside forces.

My dependable physical assets will be a perfect face for your company. As it already is with Hyperion. Now, these are mere fancy words to incline toward my handsomeness.

I could not help but notice your futile attempts to merge with the newly revised Atlas. Yet, it ended with your demise. Damn. It has only now dawned on me. I am writing an application letter to a dead guy. Aw, man. That is hilarious. I suppose that means I can just swoop in and claim the spot then.

Sincerely,

Handsome Jack
